Prequel to YAKKA: The Last Bloodline · Part III: The War of the Giants

RITIGALA TOMB · NIGHT
On the last night of the telling, the monk unwraps a cracked gold-leaf fragment engraved in Yakka star-script.
THE MONK
"This piece is all that is left of the Pact."
NAWWA
"Did the kings keep the promise?"
FWOOSH!!
THE MONK
"They kept it... but in blood."
2ND CENTURY BCE · ANURADHAPURA
"Where there is war, no one watches the ground."
Outside Anuradhapura's fortress walls, Hollow men with red-black eyes dug into the dark.
CLINK! THUD!
In King Elara's hall, a minister's eyes flickered red-black.
In Prince Dutugemunu's southern war camp, a captain looked up with the same flicker.
THE SHADOW IN BOTH COURTS
TWO KINGS. ONE ENEMY NEITHER COULD SEE.

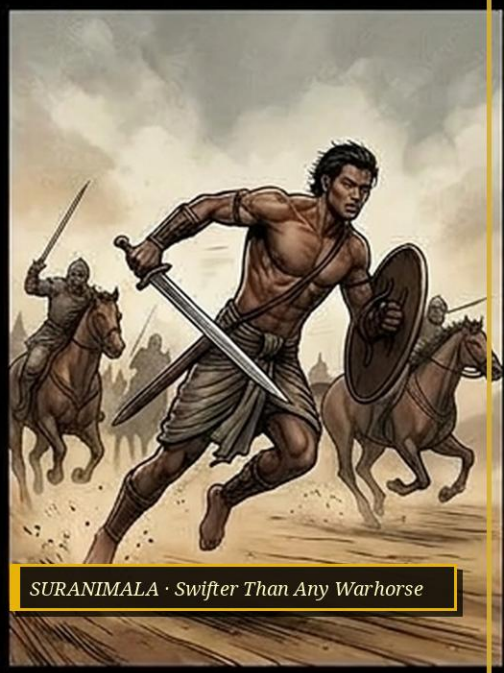

DASA MAHA YODHAYO
"The prince gathered ten great giants..."

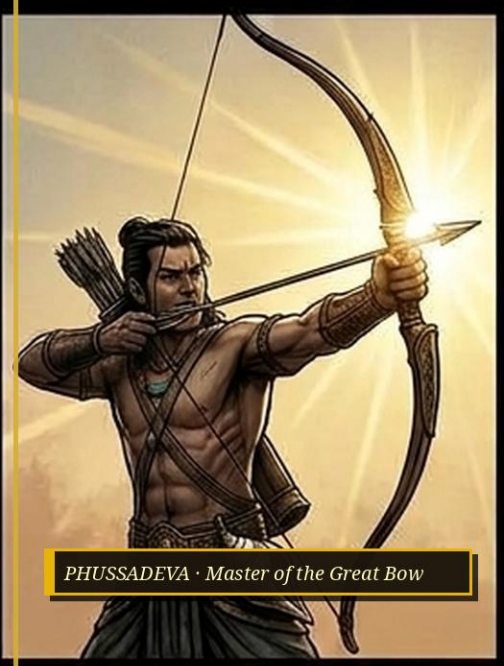

PRINCE DUTUGEMUNU · Atop Royal Tusker Kandula

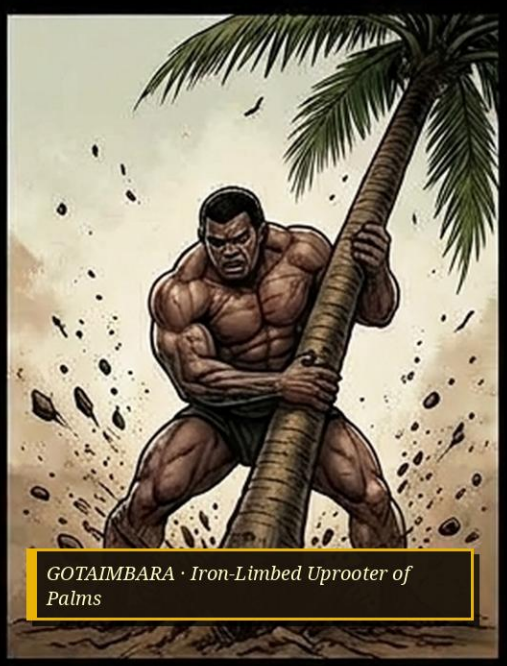

NANDHIMITRA · Wrestled Kandula with Bare Hands

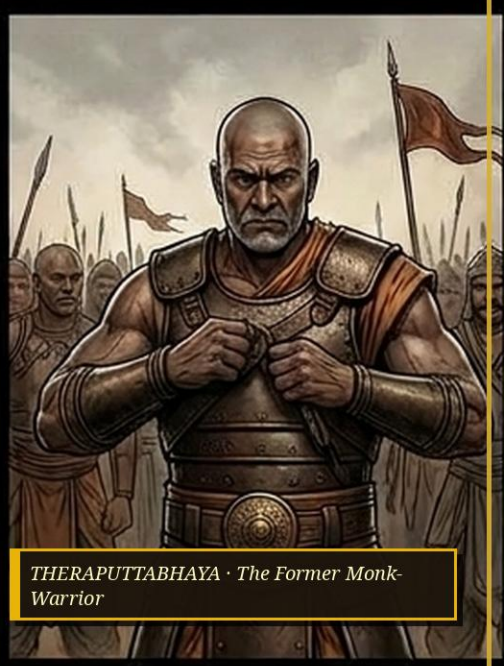

SURANIMALA · Swifter Than Any Warhorse

PHUSSADEVA · Master of the Great Bow

GOTAIMBARA · Iron-Limbed Uprooter of Palms

THERAPUTTABHAYA · The Former Monk-Warrior

THE ELEVENTH CHAMPION
"...but there was one more, whom the chronicles left out: JAYASENA OF RITIGALA, a giant of Yakka blood."

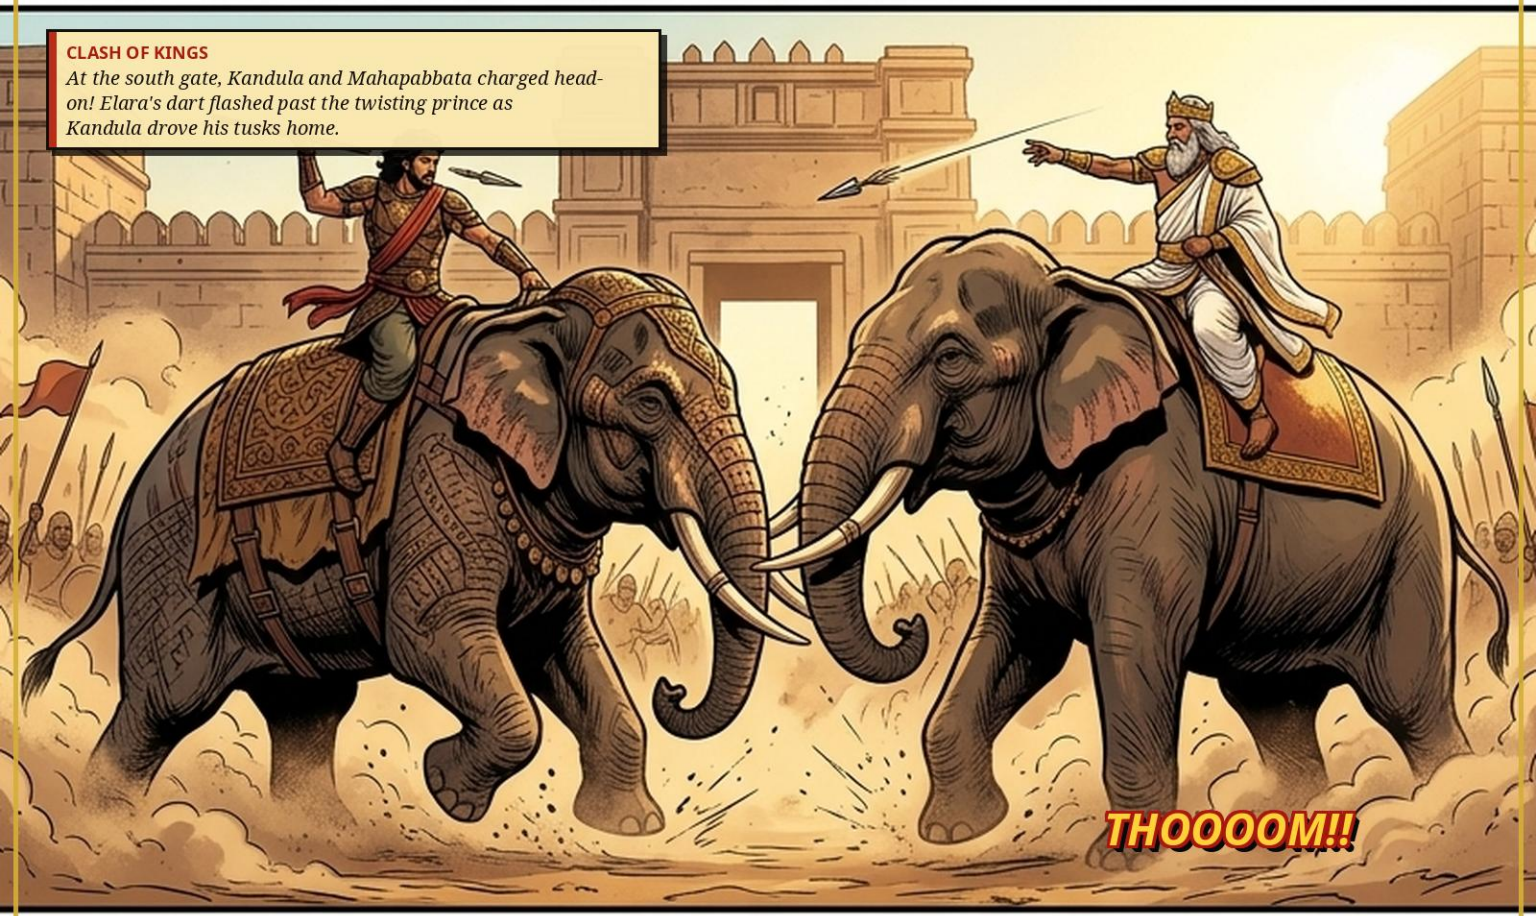

YAKKHINI ELDER
"Guard the stones. Nothing else matters."

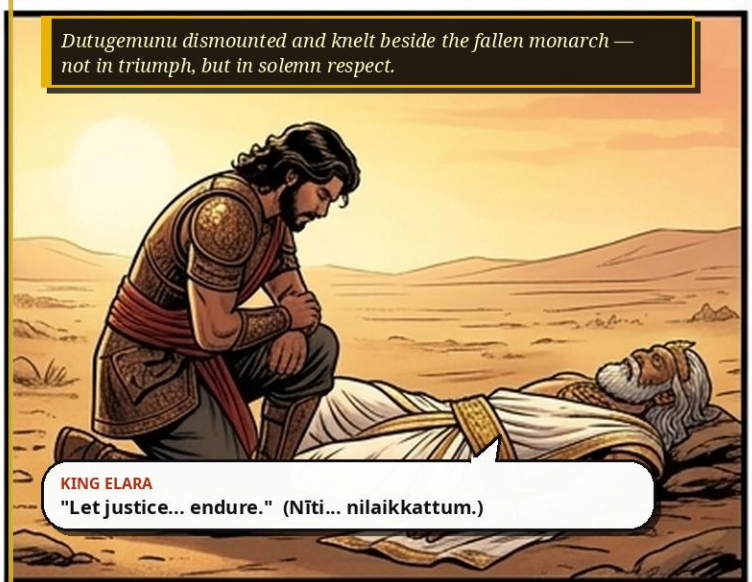

THE IRON FORTRESS
VIJITHAPURA. FOUR MONTHS OF SIEGE.
A fortress city ringed by moats and three walls,
its gate towers bristling with spears.
PRINCE DUTUGEMUNU
"BREAK THE GATE!"
Burned by molten pitch at the iron gate, Kandula plunged into a pool. Bound in thick buffalo hides, the great tusker charged again!
ROOOOOAAAR!!
KRA-BOOOOM!!
BREACH AT THE SOUTH GATE
The iron gate crashed in! As the stone tower arch fell toward Kandula, NANDHIMITRA hurled it aside with bare hands while SURANIMALA leaped the wall itself!

THE EAST GATE
At the east gate, Gotaimbara and Theraputtabhaya broke through — while beside them, Jayasena swung his axe with teal veins blazing in his arms, until the ground gave way beneath him!
KRA-CRACK!!
Deep in a tunnel beneath Vijithapura stood Elara's traitor minister among Hollow diggers — and unfolding from the dark behind them were three MARA INFANTRY!
JAYASENA
"This... is the ancient enemy."
KRA-SMASH!!
THE MONK (NARRATING)
"No chronicle tells of this fight." Jayasena tore one creature apart and shattered the timber props — burying the minister and the beasts before dragging himself into the light.

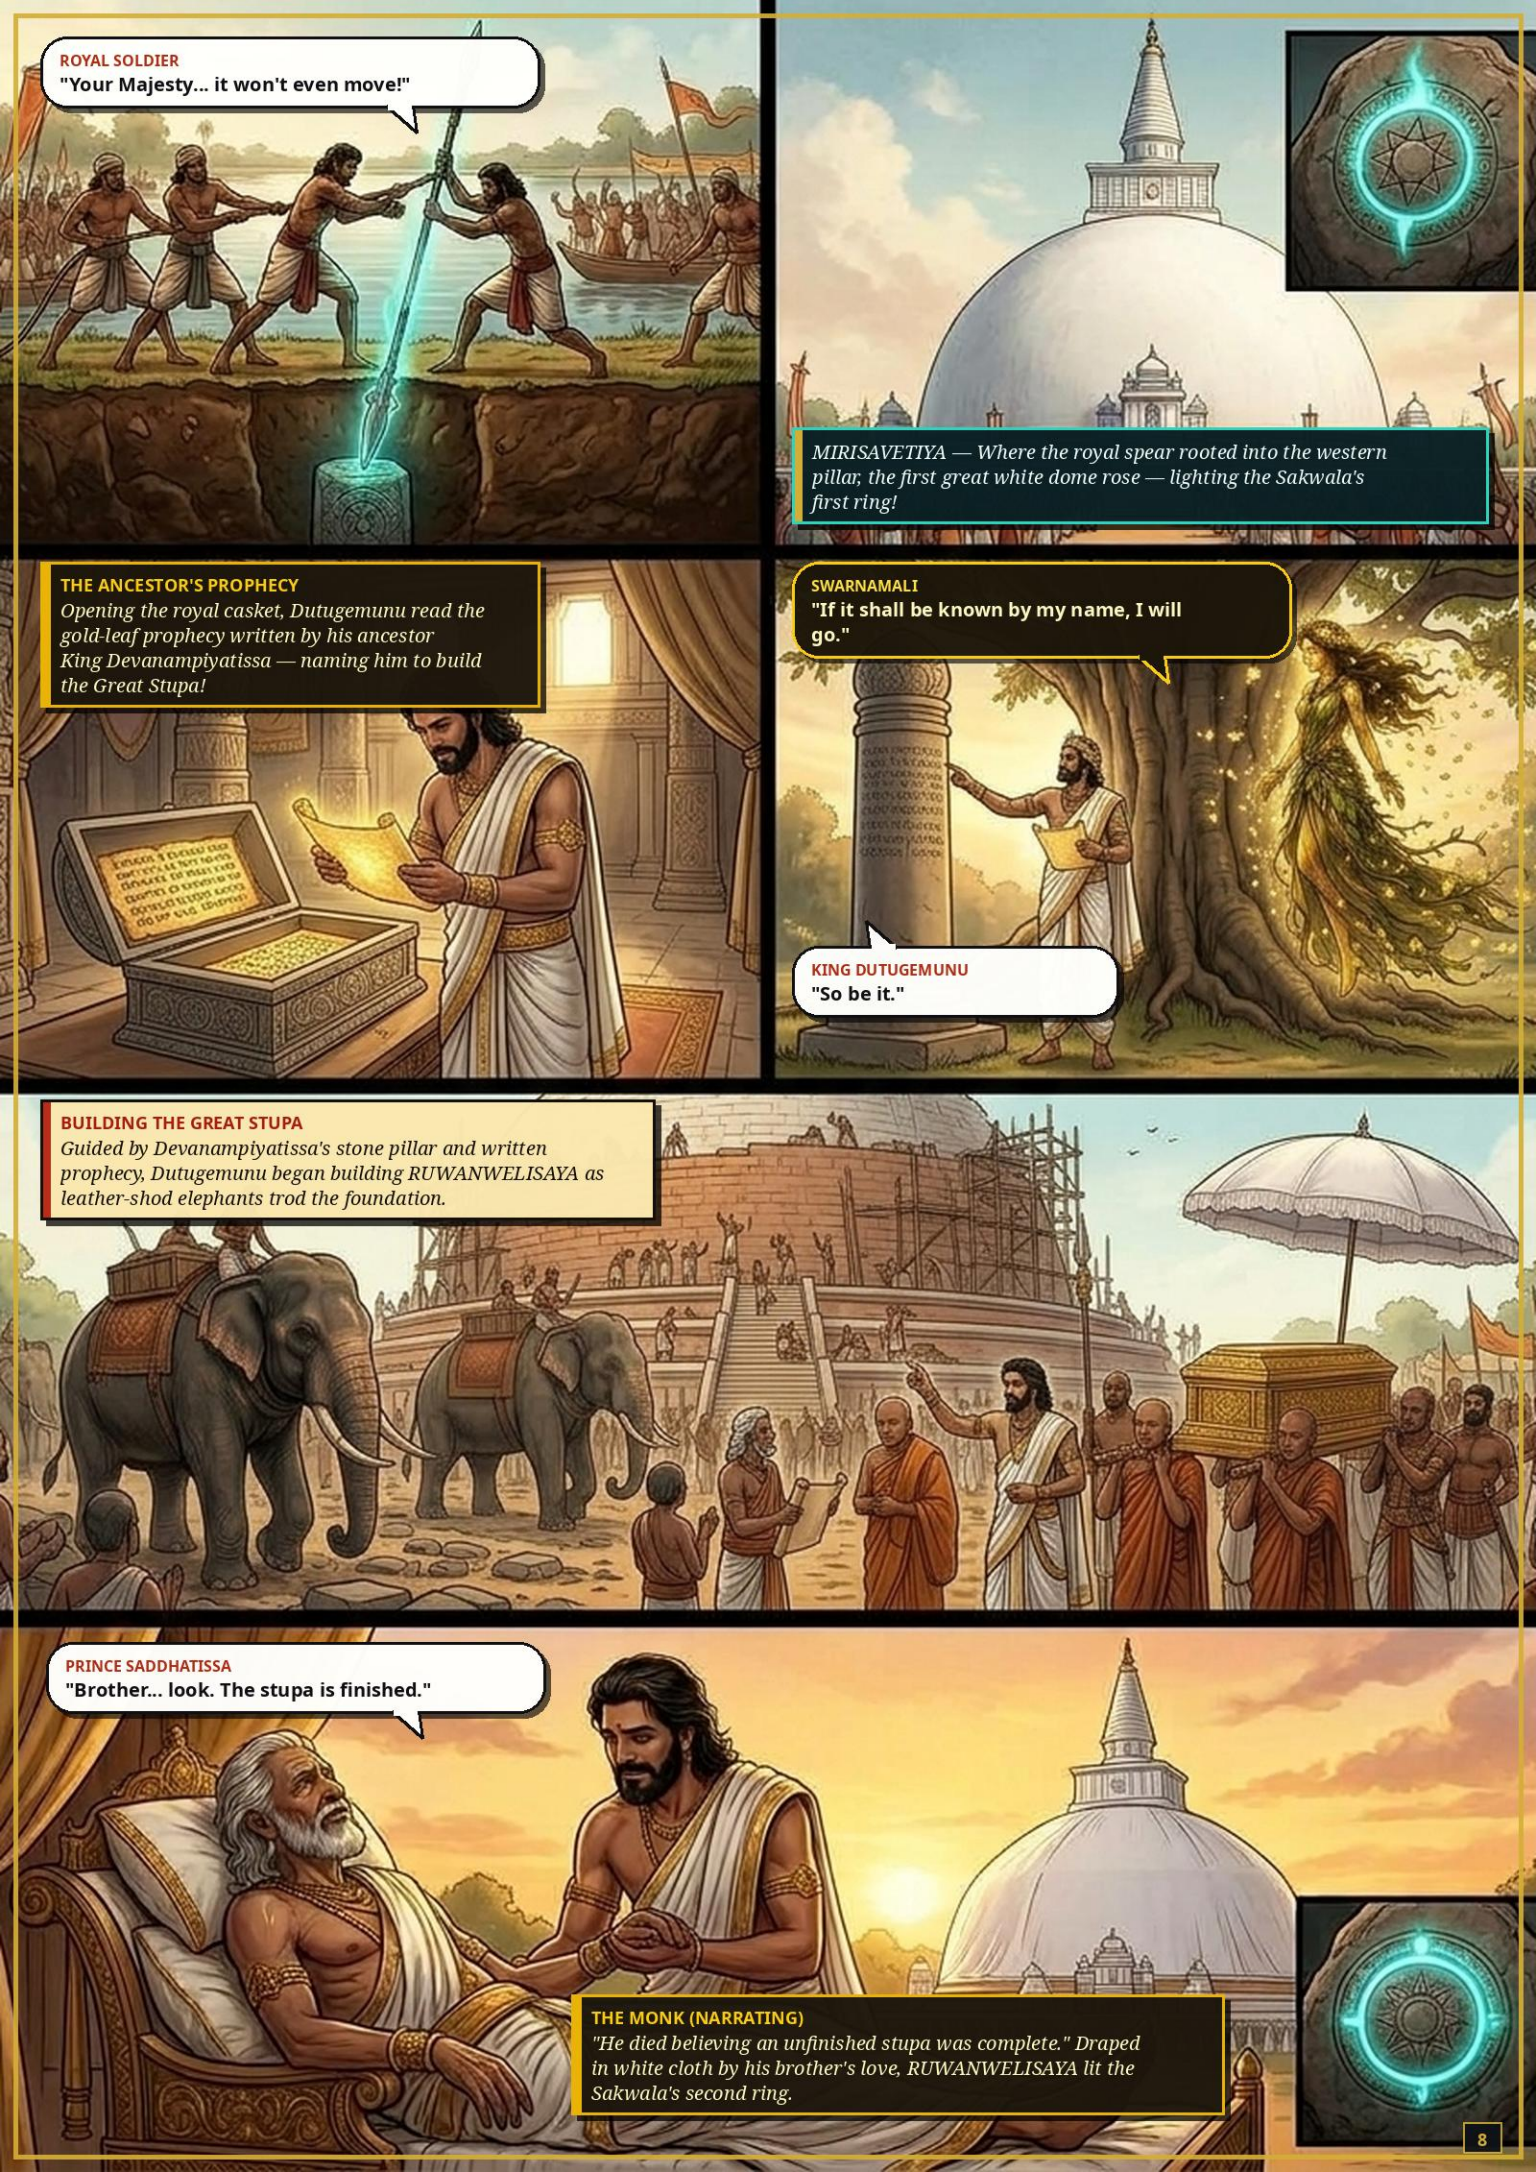

THE SOUTH GATE OF ANURADHAPURA
Below the walls of Anuradhapura, two vast armies collided! At the centre of his line rode dignified, silver-bearded KING ELARA atop his great elephant Mahapabbata.
Elara's champion DIGHAJANTU leaped through the air, splitting Suranimala's shield — as Suranimala drove his spear home!
SHATTER-CLANG!!
WRATH OF THE TREE GODDESS
While the armies clashed, the traitor captain led Hollow diggers to the Ran Thelambu tree — until SWARNAMALI rose from the bark and living roots seized them!
SWARNAMALI
"GO BACK!"
Jayasena and Gotaimbara held the line beside the tree! Ripping off the captain's helmet to expose his red-black eyes, Jayasena broke the Hollow rout!
KRANG-RIP!!

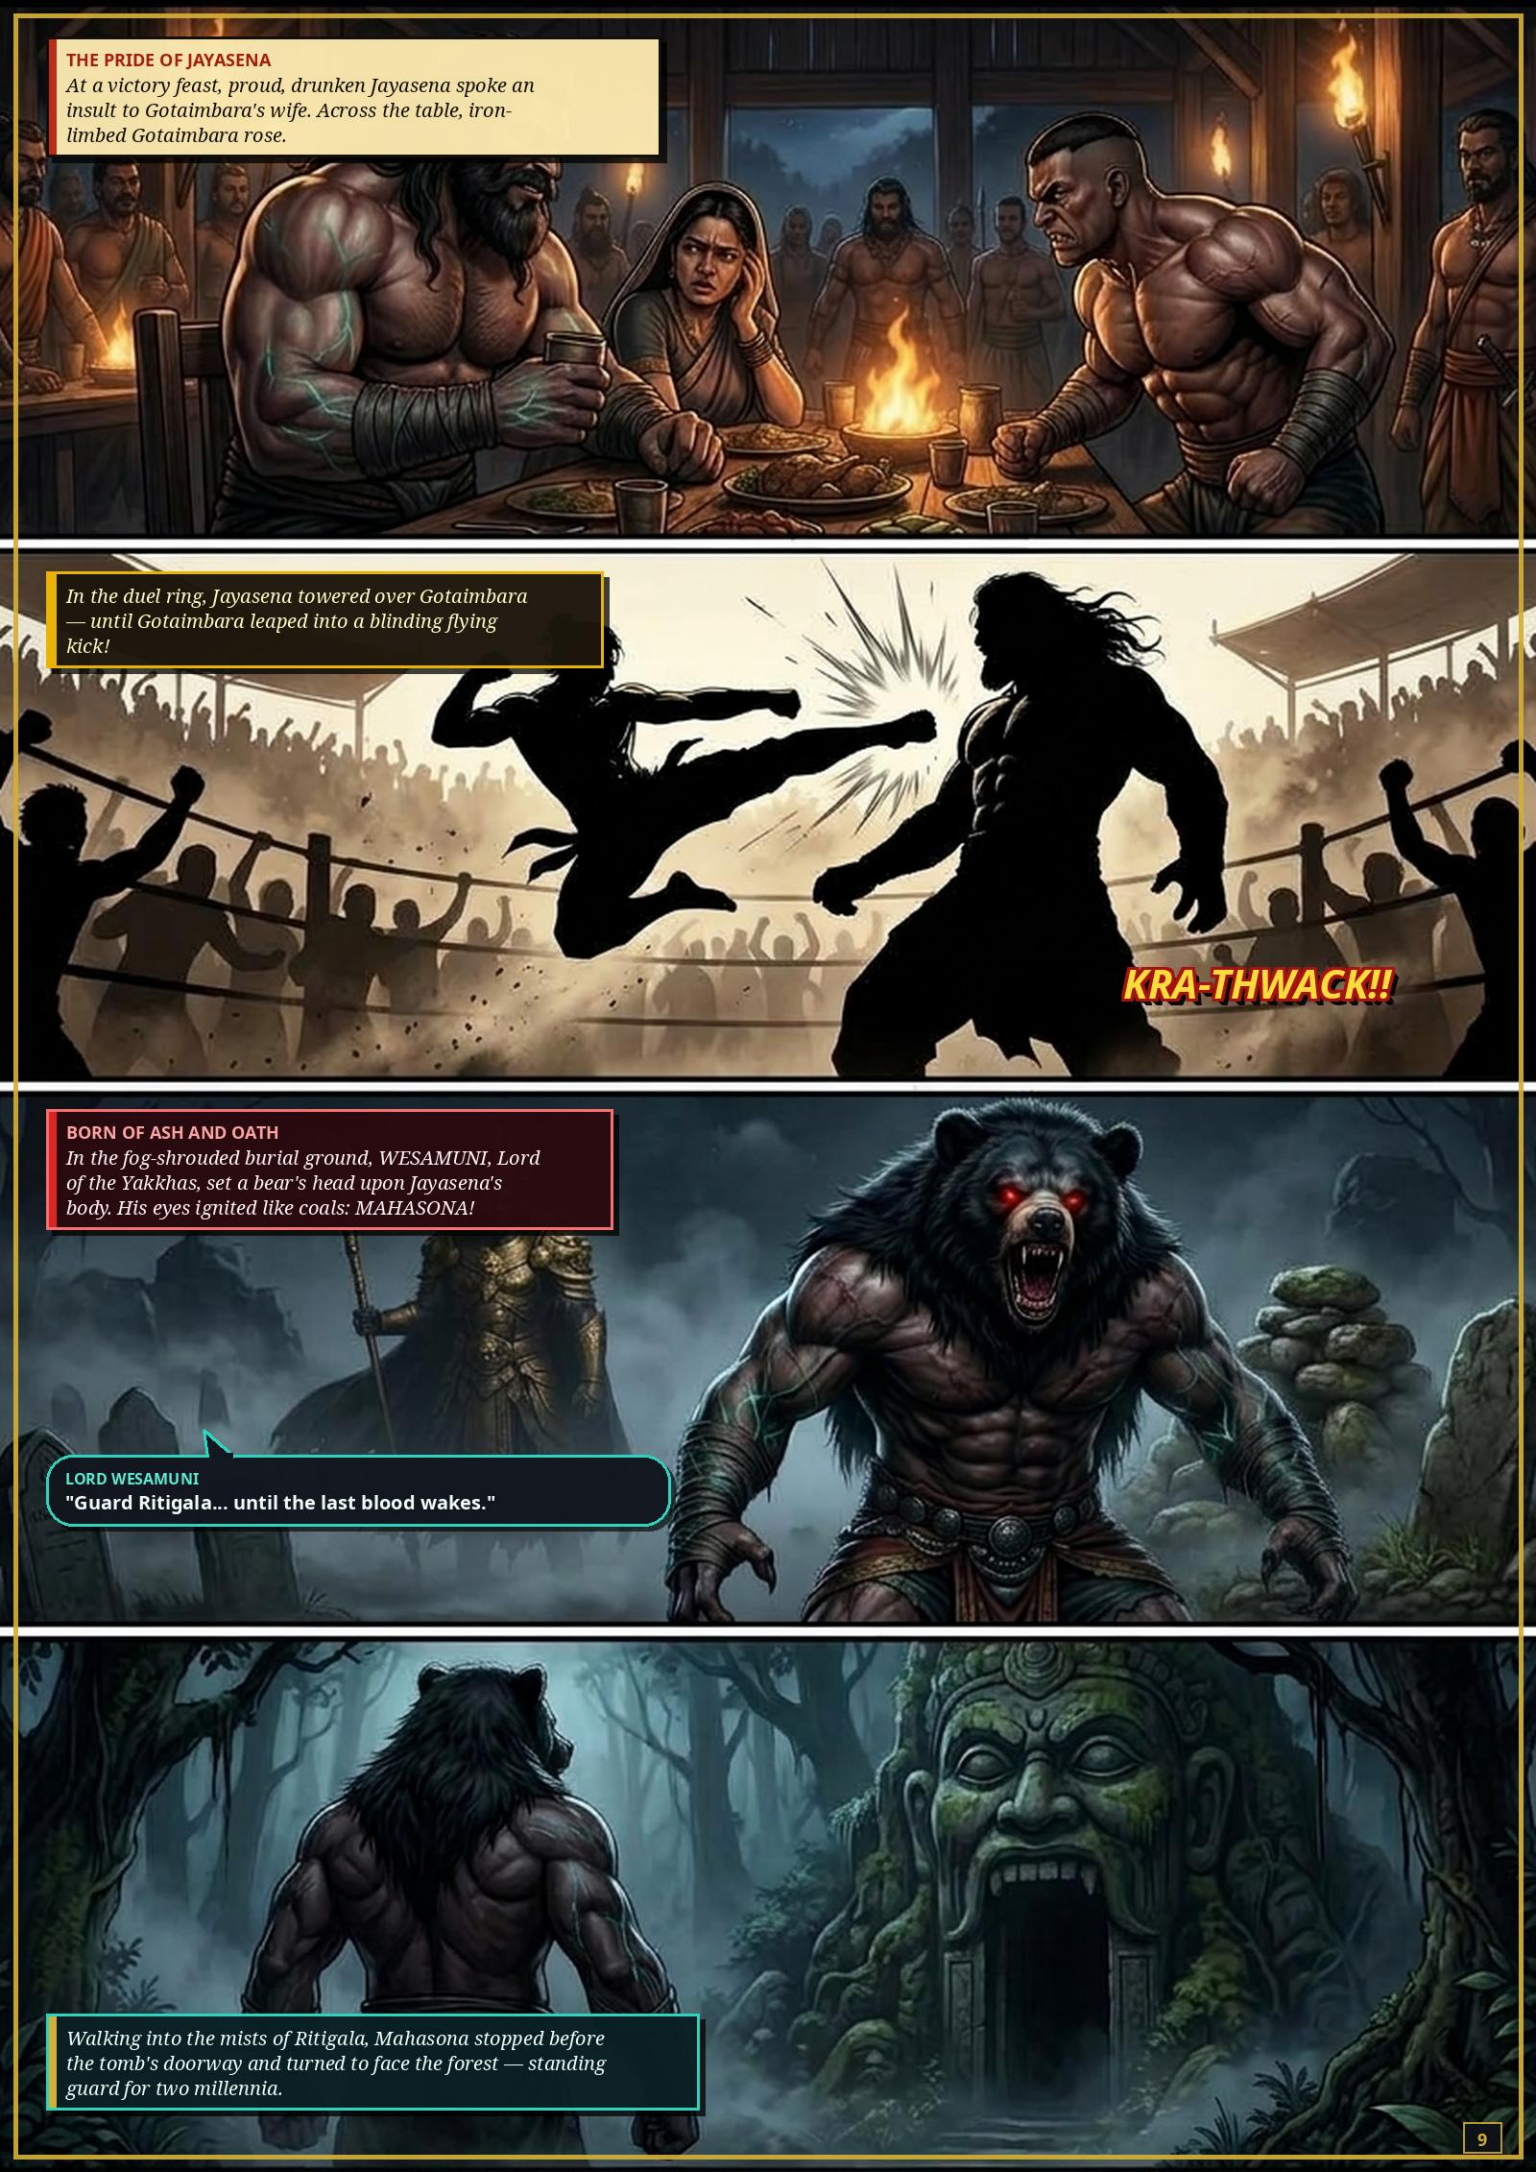

PRINCE DUTUGEMUNU
"None but I shall fight King Elara!"
DOOM! DOOM! DOOM!

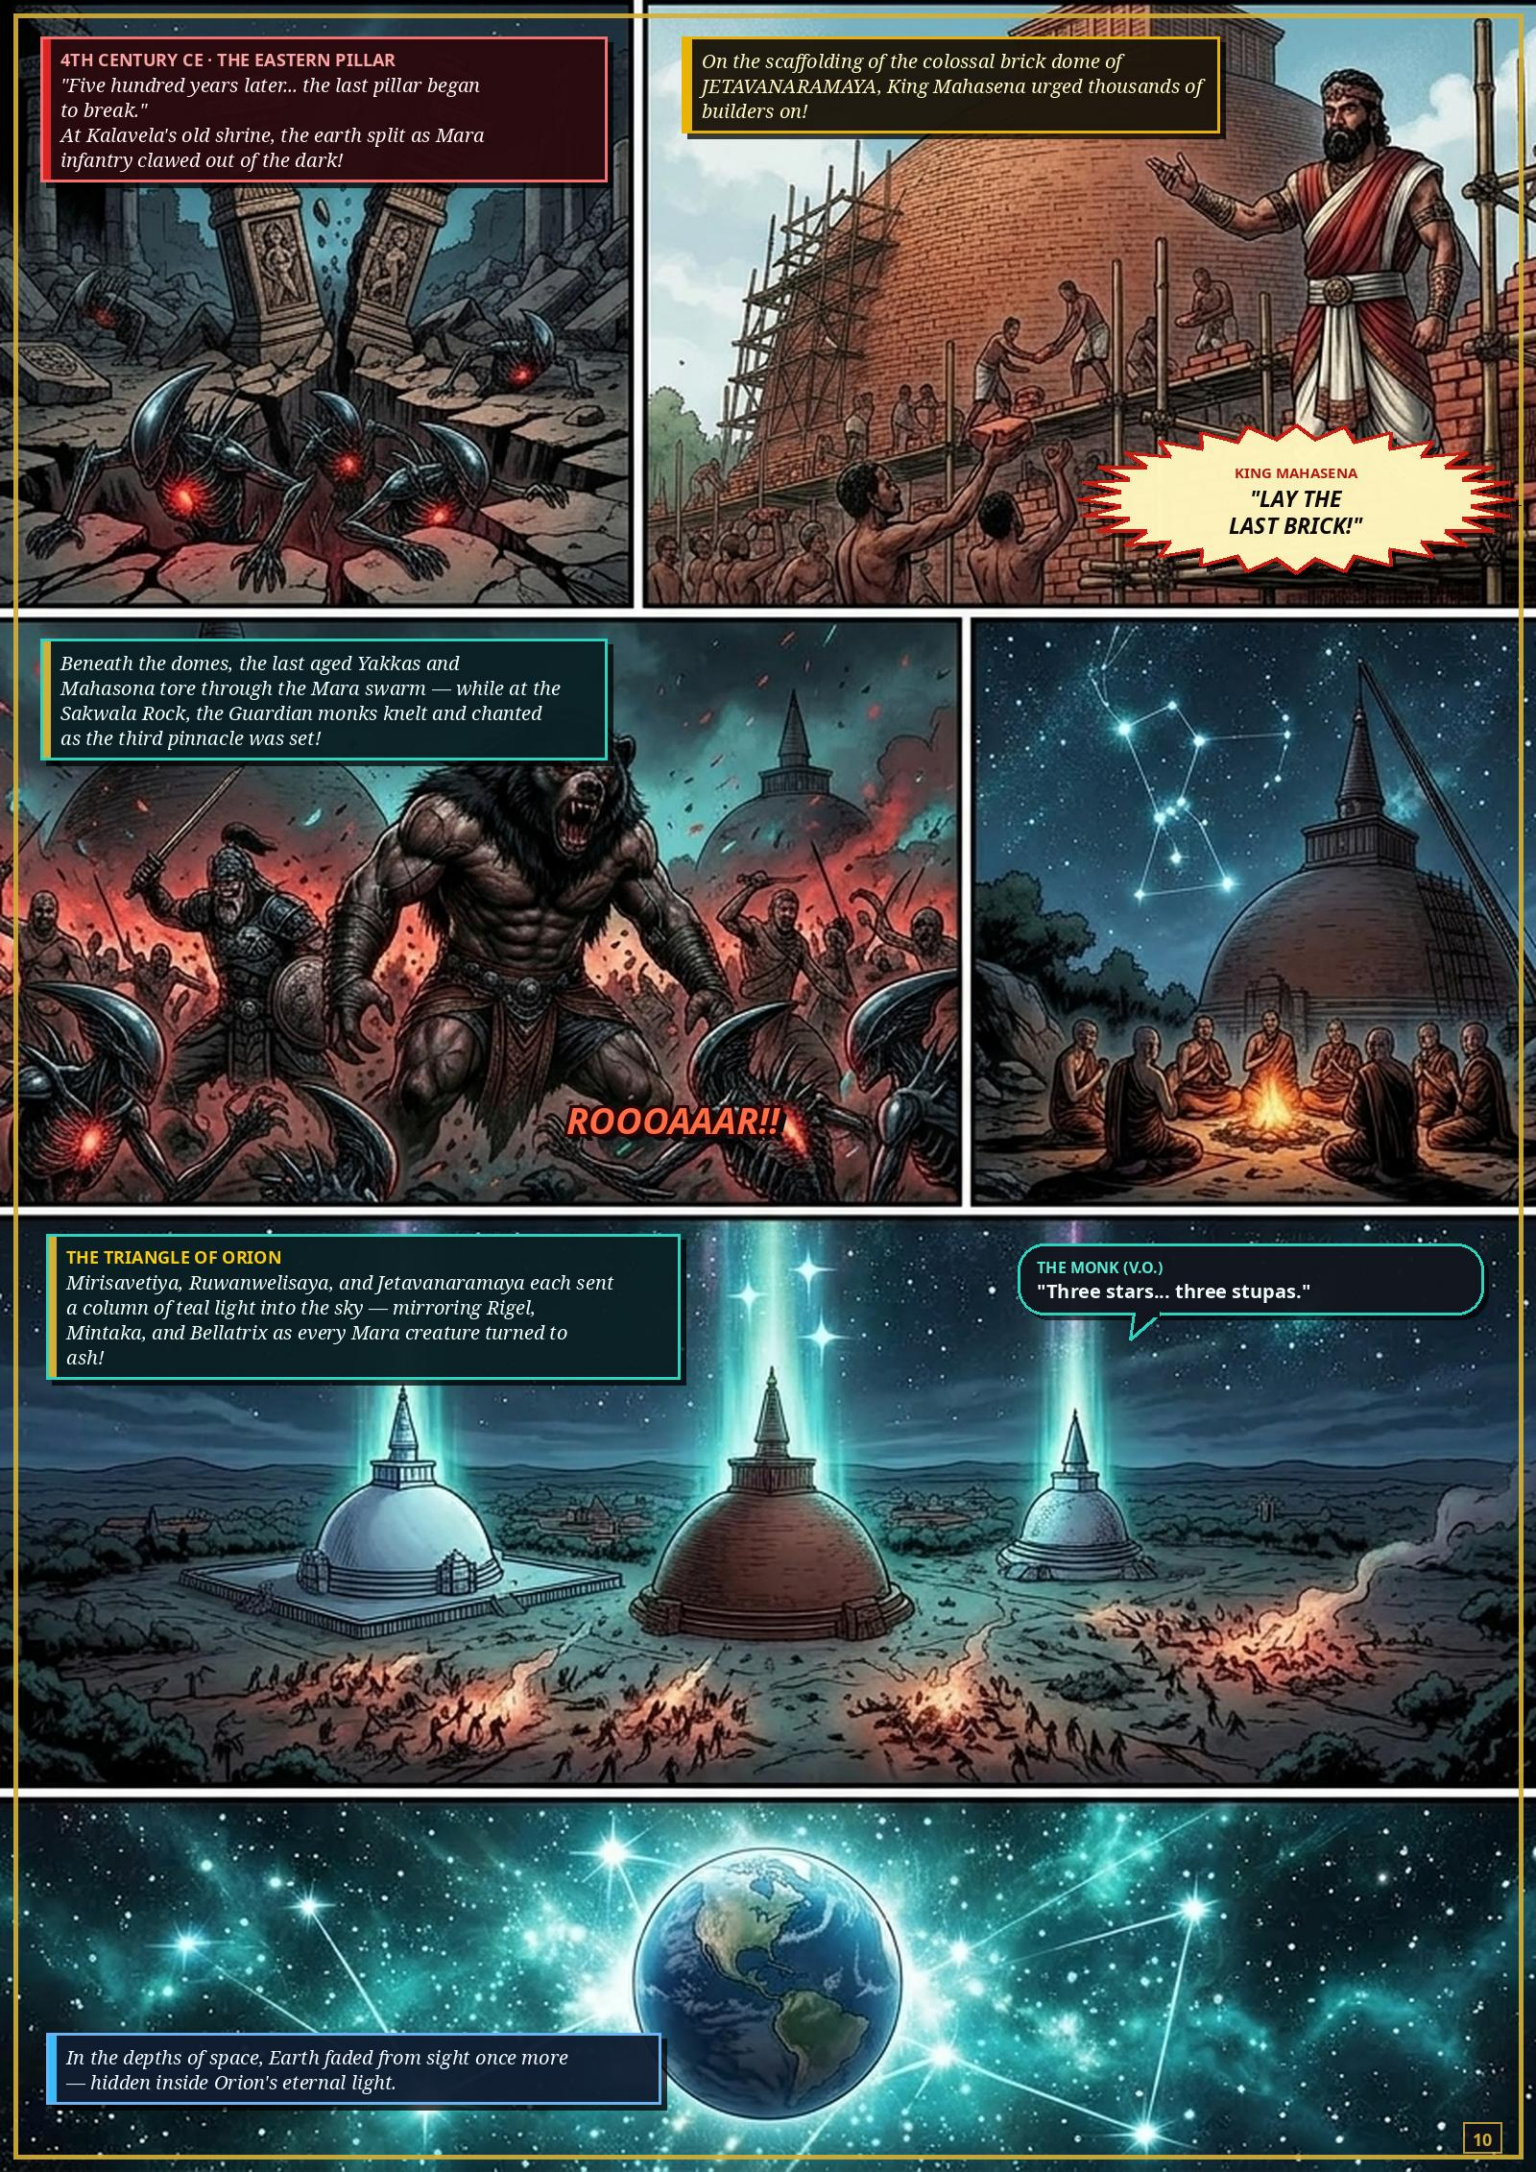

CLASH OF KINGS
At the south gate, Kandula and Mahapabbata charged head-on! Elara's dart flashed past the twisting prince as Kandula drove his tusks home.
THOOOOM!!

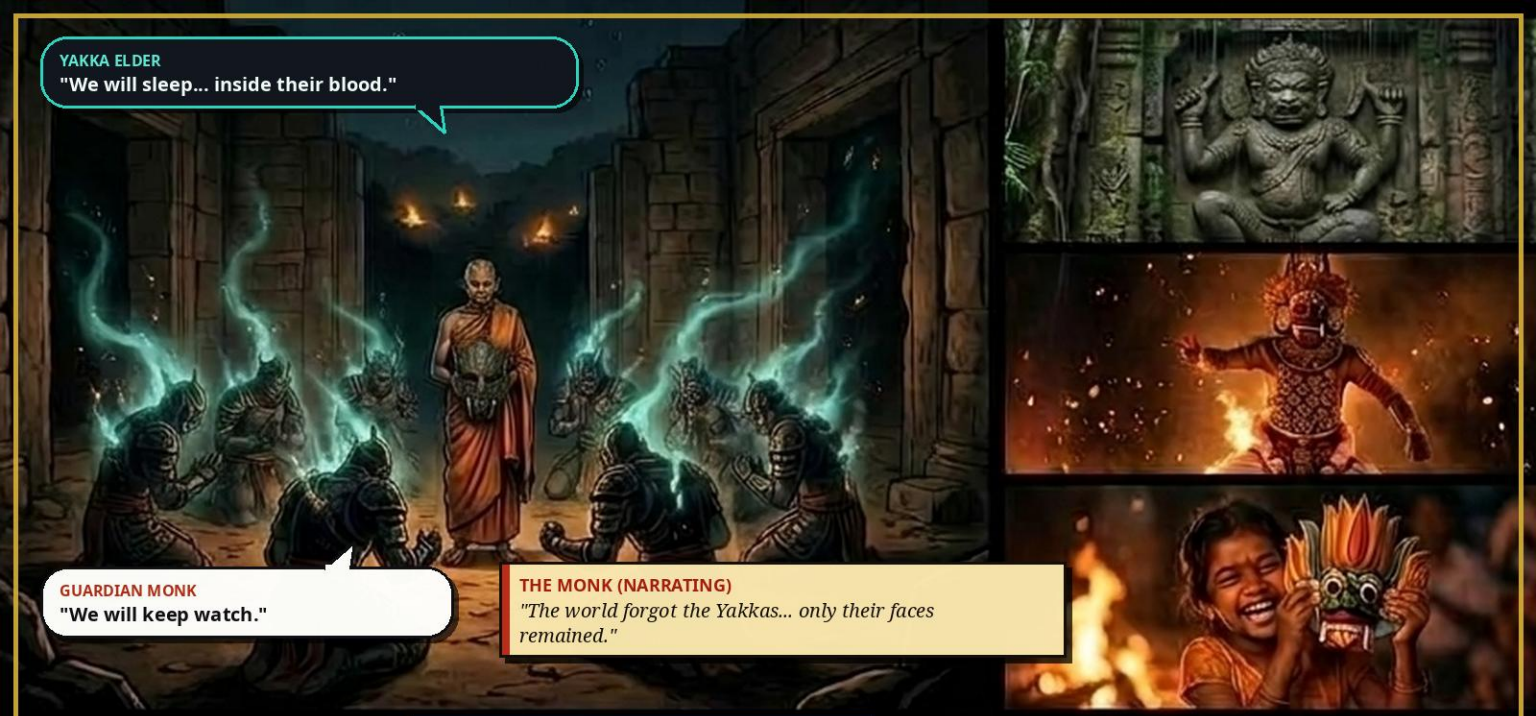

Dutugemunu dismounted and knelt beside the fallen monarch — not in triumph, but in solemn respect.
KING ELARA
"Let justice... endure." (Nīti... nilaikkattum.)

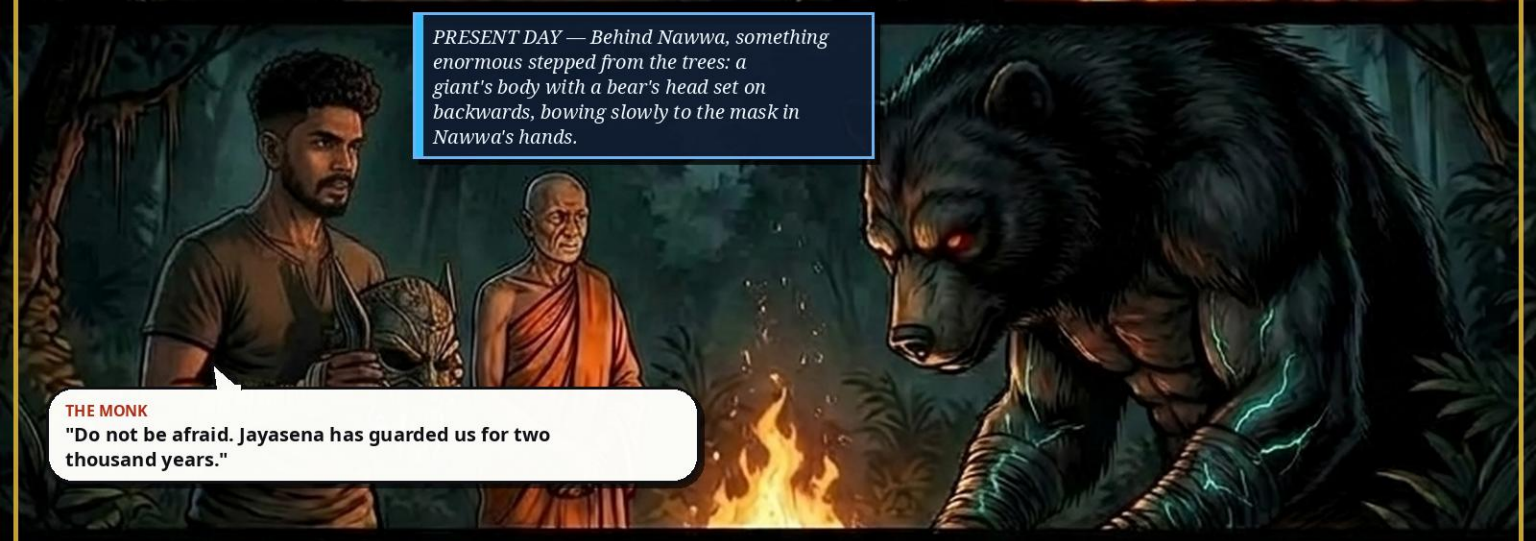

PRINCE DUTUGEMUNU
"Whoever passes this place shall silence their drums and pay respect."

ROYAL SOLDIER
"Your Majesty... it won't even move!"
MIRISAVETIYA — Where the royal spear rooted into the western pillar, the first great white dome rose — lighting the Sakwala's first ring!
THE ANCESTOR'S PROPHECY
Opening the royal casket, Dutugemunu read the gold-leaf prophecy written by his ancestor King Devanampiyatissa — naming him to build the Great Stupa!
SWARNAMALI
"If it shall be known by my name, I will go."
KING DUTUGEMUNU
"So be it."
BUILDING THE GREAT STUPA
Guided by Devanampiyatissa's stone pillar and written prophecy, Dutugemunu began building RUWANWELISAYA as leather-shod elephants trod the foundation.
PRINCE SADDHATISSA
"Brother... look. The stupa is finished."
THE MONK (NARRATING)
"He died believing an unfinished stupa was complete." Draped in white cloth by his brother's love, RUWANWELISAYA lit the Sakwala's second ring.

THE PRIDE OF JAYASENA
At a victory feast, proud, drunken Jayasena spoke an insult to Gotaimbara's wife. Across the table, iron-limbed Gotaimbara rose.
In the duel ring, Jayasena towered over Gotaimbara — until Gotaimbara leaped into a blinding flying kick!
KRA-THWACK!!
BORN OF ASH AND OATH
In the fog-shrouded burial ground, WESAMUNI, Lord of the Yakkhas, set a bear's head upon Jayasena's body. His eyes ignited like coals: MAHASONA!
LORD WESAMUNI
"Guard Ritigala... until the last blood wakes."
Walking into the mists of Ritigala, Mahasona stopped before the tomb's doorway and turned to face the forest — standing guard for two millennia.

4TH CENTURY CE · THE EASTERN PILLAR
"Five hundred years later... the last pillar began to break."
At Kalavela's old shrine, the earth split as Mara infantry clawed out of the dark!
On the scaffolding of the colossal brick dome of JETAVANARAMAYA, King Mahasena urged thousands of builders on!
KING MAHASENA
"LAY THE LAST BRICK!"
Beneath the domes, the last aged Yakkas and Mahasona tore through the Mara swarm — while at the Sakwala Rock, the Guardian monks knelt and chanted as the third pinnacle was set!
ROOOAAAR!!
THE TRIANGLE OF ORION
Mirisavetiya, Ruwanwelisaya, and Jetavanaramaya each sent a column of teal light into the sky — mirroring Rigel, Mintaka, and Bellatrix as every Mara creature turned to ash!
THE MONK (V.O.)
"Three stars... three stupas."
In the depths of space, Earth faded from sight once more — hidden inside Orion's eternal light.

YAKKA ELDER
"We will sleep... inside their blood."
GUARDIAN MONK
"We will keep watch."
THE MONK (NARRATING)
"The world forgot the Yakkas... only their faces remained."

PRESENT DAY — Behind Nawwa, something enormous stepped from the trees: a giant's body with a bear's head set on backwards, bowing slowly to the mask in Nawwa's hands.
THE MONK
"Do not be afraid. Jayasena has guarded us for two thousand years."

THE MONK
"The veil is broken. The kings are gone. The fourth pillar... is you."

THE AWAKENING
In deep space, the Mara-9 fleet turned as one toward Earth — while deep beneath Anuradhapura, the Hridaya Core pulsed blood-red once more!
MARA TRANSMISSION
"MARA-9 EL'KAAR..."
